STORY

Luca Distler and Florian Pichler forge handmade knives of supreme quality for fishermen, hunters, chefs, collectors, and all Damascus steel enthusiasts. They call themselves Messer Werk. The Messer Werk crafted, Damascus steel knives are characterized by their durability and a resistant, precise cutting edge. These elite bladesmiths combine design, art, and traditional craftsmanship to produce static and folding knives of enduring quality.

Their utmost values are the appreciation of quality, the respect for materials as well as individual customer service, all aimed at creating one-of-a-kind products. When crafting a custom knife, the blacksmith adapts the blade's hardness and stability to its final use to achieve the optimal performance for its purpose. The customer individually chooses his or her material for the knife's handle. This creates a special relationship between the knife and its owner who appreciates it as a decorative as well as a functional tool.
